Top-rated “Tiny House Nation” Show Featuring Daikin Ductless in a Diminutive Victorian

GAINESVILLE, Fla., May 23, 2016 – FYI’s original television series “Tiny House Nation,” which celebrates the exploding trend of extreme downsizing across the country, is featuring a Daikin ductless indoor comfort solution for a diminutive Victorian home during its third season.

The tiny, 600-square foot Victorian home in Gainesville, Florida, makes an ideal installation for the Daikin ductless system, designed for space- and cost-saving solutions that require high-performance heating and cooling, explains Matt Lacey, product manager, ductless systems, Daikin North America.

“Tiny House Nation” was the first of its kind in the tiny living genre, and continues to rank as the network’s #1-rated program in the home space. The show airs 9pm ET/PT Saturday evenings on FYI.

The series follows host John Weisbarth and renovation expert Zack Giffin as they travel across America showing off ingenious small spaces and the inventive people who live in them. Along the way, they help families design and construct their own mini dream homes.

“In the tiny Victorian-style home, Daikin’s ductless system provides energy efficiency and remote-controlled comfort for the homeowners who were seeking an inexpensive and unobtrusive indoor comfort solution,” Lacey says. “By using a Daikin ductless system, homeowners gain a flexible design that blends in discreetly, perfect for single-room enhancements and additions of up to 1,460 square feet. Streamlined, wall-mounted indoor units pair with compact, quiet outdoor units.”

By downsizing, tiny homeowners are often seeking financial independence, while simplifying their lives. The Daikin ductless system features an Econo Mode function that can reduce operating current and power consumption during startup. Wide-angle louvers and vertical auto-swing function distributes heating and cooling throughout the room.

“Tiny House Nation,” hosts Weisbarth and Giffin often overcome daunting construction projects faced with space limitations. The hosts set out to prove to new tiny home owners that they don’t necessarily need the amount of space they initially thought they couldn’t live without.
